Can you describe, in laymen's terms, the process of creating a full Trail Boss toolset? A Trail Boss is two distinct components: 1) The handle and its pieces and, 2) The various heads attaching to it. The handle is the heart of the Trail Boss and is an assembly of the machined couplings on each end (or on one end of a grip handle), and the ...

The Trail Boss is not a new tire for WTB, but the plus-sized version is a recent addition to the line. I actually tested the less chubby Trail Boss 2.4" last year and called it a, "set it and forget it" due to its versatility across conditions. The Trail Boss 3.0 features a similar tread pattern to its skinnier sibling, just with more knobs.
